Review of the o, e, and x Families of Letters

The italic o is not a circle. It is narrow and should be shaped somewhat like an oval. The italic e may be thought of as an o whose right middle has been cut and sewn to the left side; again, it is narrow and shaped like an oval. The x is made by drawing a diagonal curved line first, and then a straight diagonal line which intersects the first.
