

Assignment 27
Writing Seminar

- I have corrected the blog entries that have been emailed to me. They will appear on the site this week, next or the following. Please send your blog entry if you have not already. Last call!
- We have discussed three elements of novel writing: an idea, character and chemical reactions. This week I would like you to think about two more elements: dramatic irony (which we have discussed somewhat already) and suspense and mystery. Write one more chapter of your novel, and please bring it in to discuss.
- Next week we will be practicing the plays (remember writing them?). Even though there will be no performance for Speech Night, I would like us to break up into groups and perform three of them, which I will choose. They might not necessarily be the best plays, but they will what I think the easiest to perform.

Suspense and Mystery

DRAMATIC IRONY