

B is for Bear

Assignment 28

- speech day. There will be no more class time for students to practice their poem for Speech Day, which will be held immediately after we return from our spring break on Friday April 25 at 9:45 at our regular meeting place, the Broomall Reformed Presbyterian Church. I would suggest, then, that students practice their poem every day at home to make sure that they are ready and comfortable in saying it in front of an audience. Students will also be reciting the introduction that they were given.
- poetry memorization. Memorize Stanza 1 of Edgar Allan Poe's "The Bells." You should also continue memorizing your poem along with the introduction.
- phonics, reading, and grammar. Complete Lesson 28 in your B is for Bear textbook, volume 2.
- handwriting. Complete Lesson 28 of your handwriting book.
- dictation. Students should write out Dictation 28 below. note that there is one dictation exercise.

EXERCISE A

Turn the page.

The ox ate corn from the manger.

Why did Bob fall into a rage?

The cottage was in the village.

The mangy animal in the cage growled.

- reading suggestion. Here is recommended anthology of poems on the seasons to supplement the review of Christina Rossetti's poem "Bitter for Sweet": J. D. McClatchy. The Four Seasons: Poems. New York: Everyman's Pocket Library, 2008. stening to you say both after the Easter break.